TABLE D'HOTE.
At the Howard Street House—The subscriber respectfully informs his friends and the public, that his Ordinary continues to be kept daily for their accommodation. Dinner is served at 1 o'clock precisely, and is furnished with every luxury of the season. Gentlemen wishing to dine at any other hour can be accommodated at the Restaurant. His cellars are provided with wines of every description, and of the choicest qualities—for which the House has been so long celebrated.
JAMES RYAN.

MASSAHOIT HOUSE.
The subscriber respectfully informs his friends and the public, that this large and elegant establishment, 34 miles from the city, is now open for the reception of company, and every effort will be made to give entire satisfaction to individuals and parties of pleasure, at immediate notice.
JOHN DAVIS.

HANOVER HOUSE.
No 50 Hanover street, opposite Elm street. The above establishment is now undergoing a thorough repair, and will be ready for the reception of company in a few days. The House is nearly new, having been built but a few months, and will be furnished with every article of modern furniture, and every well tried assistant, to please his former custom and those who may visit the Warren House for the first time.
Extensive stables, with pure water, is attached to the establishment.
AZARIAH PROCTOR.

WARREN HOUSE.
At the junction of Merrimack and Friend Streets. This establishment having now gone through extensive repairs and additions, will compare with any first class house in the city. It has been furnished from top to bottom with new furniture, bedding, carpeting, &c., and is now open for the accommodation of travellers. It is the intention to conduct the House after the mode of the most approved public houses—and every effort will be made to please his former custom and those who may visit the Warren House for the first time.
Extensive stables, with pure water, is attached to the establishment.
AZARIAH PROCTOR.

RAILWAY HOUSE, MILTON, MASS.
The subscriber respectfully informs the public that he has taken a lease of this extensive house, and newly refitted and furnished it throughout with every article necessary for the accommodation and comfort of travellers, convivial parties and families.
A beautiful grove with pleasant walks, a garden, swing &c. are connected with this establishment, and its proximity to the city renders it an inviting place of resort for those who may desire to spend a few days in the country, or for the enjoyment of a good dinner, or for the purpose of business.
The following tables have been newly refitted, and good attendants provided.
The larder will be stored with the best of provisions, and such delicacies as the season affords. The bar will also be kept supplied with choice wines and liquors. Good stabling for horses.
The Dorchester and Milton line of stages leave for Boston every morning and noon, and return at noon and 4 o'clock.
SILAS HALL.

PAPER MILL FOR SALE.
For sale in a pleasant village in the town of Leominster, in the county of Worcester, a Paper Mill, with two engines, and a good Cylindrical Machine, all in good order, and a good business—It is a first rate stream, commanding the whole water—with a never-failing fountain of spring water carried into the mill in lead pipes.
Also—a good House and Barn, and about 40 acres of good land—it is seldom so good a chance offered to young men wishing to establish themselves in that business. The present owner cleared the property in a very few years, when paper was made by hand, and relinquishes it only on account of ill health—any credit will be given that may be wanted, and possession had the first day of June next. For terms, apply to EDWARD SIMMONS, on the premises, or at 118 State st., Boston.
P. S. If not sold by that time, it will be let to let.

ORIGINAL. POETRY.
PATRICK AND KATHLEEN.
BY JOHN C. MOSSIE.

Oh Patrick—ma boughal! how dack was the day,
Which from Erin's bosom bore you away,
Your eyes filled with tears, as you fondly looked back
On the fast-fading shore, and the ship's foaming track.
And sad was your heart when the sails were all furled,
And you gazed on the East from this happy New World.
But now in your own home amid the rich West,
You and your Kathleen together are blessed,
Not ye alone, for a bright blue-eyed child,
Who smiles on her side, as his sweet Kathleen smiled,
On that summer eve in their far native land,
When, as he spoke of love, she withdrew not her hand.
Should you e'er meet a wanderer from the green isle,
Condemned like yourself to leave his love awhile,
To seek a home for her—the exile will find
A true Irish welcome—fraternally kind.
Oh! Patrick! Kathleen! bid your child bless the day,
Which from the green isle bore her parents away.

THE REMONSTRANCE.
BY LEE STEVENS.
It is not well—it is not well—
To sever thus time-axe joined ties:
Not well—wherefore thy heart can tell,
Although with anger it may swell;
Not wise—because unfriendly eyes
Behold with joy beyond disguise
Thy look of almost hate,
And mine disconsolate.

Give me one smile—give me one tear—
Though transient both, and insincere;
One smile—transient to beguile,
If friends should never or love revive;
One tear—to prove our love was dear,
Then let the past be buried here,
And let the future be
Barren and dead to me.

Showers of Frogs.—We have seen an article in the papers copied from a French Journal, which gives an account of a shower of frogs. It is a very common opinion that the numerous little toads which are often seen hopping about the roadside, after a shower, have actually dropped from the clouds along with the rain. As a proof of it, it is said that, while not a single one was to be seen before the shower, they become very abundant immediately afterwards. So likewise may vast numbers of the common angle worms be seen crawling upon the surface of the soil, just after a rain. Yet, instead of descending from the sky, they ascend from the earth—tempted, perhaps, by the gratefulness of the moisture. In the same manner myriads of little toads or frogs, which, during dry weather, have been concealed under the moist herbage, or in holes and crevices, when the earth is visited by a shower, suddenly emerge from their retreats, covering the earth, as if they had descended with the rain-drops.

"Lost Rocks."—In the midst of the alluvial prairies of Illinois, immense detached rocks of granite are found, weighing from one to twelve thousand pounds, although no quarry of that formation has ever been discovered in the state. These stones are called in mineralogy boulders, and the circumstances under which they are found have given rise to much speculation in regard to their origin.

Geologists suppose these boulders to have been carried to their present positions by a powerful current of water, which they think has swept over the earth's surface.

Another Victim.—A young man, the only male representative of a highly respectable family, was killed on last Saturday in Jefferson county, N. H., by a very harmless youth on whom the wretched inebriate was making a mortal assault. The facts are briefly these: The young man who has fallen, began, in February last, to give signs of mania. On the 22d of February he took out a license of marriage, embracing the name of a young lady residing near him. He asked a clergyman to officiate on the next Wednesday at his marriage, and also invited a numerous wedding company. At a ball the same evening, in the midst of a large assemblage, he read aloud, mounted on a table, his marriage license. From this public proclamation the lady received the first intelligence about the contemplated wedding, which had been arranged by the maniac lover. On the day appointed by him for solemnizing the rites of matrimony, he proceeded, despite the efforts of his friends, and at the risk of one individual's life, who endeavored to prevent him, to the residence of his imagined betrothed. By kind means, however, he was persuaded to return home and was soon in the care of a physician who succeeded in restoring him to a temporary soundness of intellect. On the 24th of June, the object of his maniacal devotion was led to the hymeneal altar by the young man who has been forced, in self-defence, to destroy the maniac's life. At the time of the marriage, and ever since, he had been under the influence of the mania induced by the recurrence of the phrenzizing bowl, uttering threats against the life of the young man who has killed him. On the fatal day, he went armed with knife and pistol to execute his mad purpose. His destroyer had been warned, and was prepared with rifle and shot gun, and as he entered his gate, he fired his rifle and wounded his foe in the leg, at which his horse started and threw him; but recovering, and again advancing, he received the contents of one barrel of the shot gun in his abdomen—but still urged on by the fiend within him, with pistol aimed, he received the contents of the second barrel in his head, and he fell a lifeless, mangled corpse at the door of the assaulted and unfortunate youth, whom he had resolved to destroy.

Miss Sedgwick's Residence.—Mrs. F. K. Butler, was recently staying with Miss Sedgwick, at her lovely village of Stockbridge, in Massachusetts. In the same charmed spot, enjoying the advantages of its unrivalled scenery and unrivalled society, were lately to be seen Willis and his lovely young bride, Dr. Follen and his lady, Professor and Mrs. Dwight, the author of "The Old World and the New," the author of Allen Prescott, Signora Maroncelli, the companion of Pellico, with many others, who, though not known in literature, have yet social and intellectual qualities far dearer than fame's sweetest incense to the heart, who, all under the influence of the amiable and accomplished spirits of the place, form probably, as fascinating and select a circle, as it would be possible for human nature to furnish.

Novel Law Case.—The Fredericksburg Arena mentions a case of novelty, tried on Wednesday last, in the Circuit Superior Court for Spotsylvania. A man named Payne, employed Judge Barbour, some years ago, as counsel in a suit, which was given against him. He then commenced a suit against Judge Barbour for neglect of professional duty in managing the case, and employed W. Smith; and also went against Smith, who upon the instituted proceedings against Mr. Smith, in which case verdict was given against him. In this last case he employed Mr. Trotter of Fredericksburg as counsel, who, it is said, conducted it with great zeal and ability, and had moreover the good luck to please his client so well that he does not intend to bring an action against him.—Transcript.

BOSTON MORNING POST.
TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1836.

"In the state of things at present existing in this country, my personal wishes are, to withdraw my name from the place it occupies before the public."
DANIEL WEBSTER.

"A vote of the Senate of the United States has attached to my name a disgrace which I am fully convinced no time or no efforts of mine will ever be able to efface."—Extract from Gen. Harrison's Letter dated July 16, 1816. See Niles' Reg., Vol. 10, page 424.

General Harrison's White Slave Law.—The General has written a letter in which he attempts to screen himself from the odium to which his vote to sell persons confined in jail for fine and costs has exposed him, as its only effect would have been to aggravate the unavoidable evils of poverty. He says that the obnoxious clause only related to offenders against certain penal statutes. This is a distinction without a difference, and its suggestion only betrays the innate perversity of mind ever co-existent with aristocratic principles. A mind of such a stamp can never be made to perceive that the rich and the poor are of the same species. To think that an aspirant for the Presidency should intimate that there is any intrinsic difference between a debtor to the Commonwealth and a debtor to an individual! The merest tyro in jurisprudence could confute the General in a word. The argument literally lies in a nutshell. For example:—

1. A violates an express, or an implied contract, by which he incurs a debt to B, who sues, recovers judgment, and takes out execution, upon which A is committed to jail.
2. C violates a penal statute, of which he is expressly cognizant, or is by the general principles of law, presumed to be cognizant, and incurs the penalty, judgment is rendered, and he is imprisoned for the fine and costs.

The debtor's obligation—both legal and moral—may be precisely alike in both cases. It is well known, that breaches of civil contracts may involve an almost infinite range of moral action—the debtor may be entirely free from all moral censure, or his conduct may exhibit the greatest conceivable degree of moral turpitude; his failure may be caused by the act of God, and wholly independent of his own action; or it may arise from his own premeditated fraud, planned at the very inception of the contract. In the same way, a violation of a penal statute may be either wilful or inadvertent. The only difference in the two cases is, that in the first, or civil action, the plaintiff is only an individual member of the commonwealth, and in the second the whole Commonwealth is the plaintiff. In the first it is presumed that a party engages to suffer the legal consequences, or penalty, of a civil suit, if he fail to fulfil his express, or implied, agreement. In the second case, every individual in a community is presumed to engage to fulfil the laws of that community—it is an implied contract—and if he do not, then do the community rightfully bring a suit for the penalty. In nine cases out of ten, civil actions are brought and sustained on implied contracts; and in the cases of prosecutions on penal statutes, full three-fourths of the defendants have no express knowledge of their peculiar provisions; but ignorantia legis non excusat, and the contract upon which he is criminally proceeded against is simply an implied one.

What we have laid down is merely general, and applicable to all penal statutes; but a simple example may serve to illustrate the necessarily harsh operation of General Harrison's rejected clause:—

A,—a rich man—may deem it for his interest, convenience, or good pleasure, to break a penal statute, and upon indictment, pays the fine accordingly. B,—a poor man—breaks the same statute through accident, ignorance, or an erroneous opinion of his own rights, but for want of pecuniary means, he is unable to pay the penalty, and is therefore sold for a period to the highest bidder.

Botanical Drops!

Continued unrelieved for the prevention, relief, and cure of these complaints. In proof of which, the following remarkable cures are given, and are standing:

Extract of a letter, viz:—“I, who before did not look like a human being, am now entirely healed up, (after resisting every other application for 12 years!) Previous to taking your Botanical Drops, I had given up all hope of relief.”

Another Case.—An Agent writes:—“There is a person taking the Botanical Drops, evidently with the greatest advantage. He declares, to use his own words, ‘It is doing wonders for him,’ and is, as it were, ‘snatching him from the grave.’”

Numerous instances have occurred where persons were pining away a miserable existence, nothing they could procure affording them permanent relief, until they had made use of the above invaluable Botanical Drops.

They are also the best Spring and Autumnal Purgative. Price $1, or 6 bottles for $5.

DUMFRIES' REMEDY FOR

The Piles!

ONE of the best and most thorough remedies known for this troublesome complaint. It has more perfectly answered the purpose for which it is intended than any other now in common use, and affords immediate and permanent relief both from the disease itself, and the accompanying symptoms of pain in the loins, vertigo, headache, loss of appetite, indigestion, and other marks of debility.

Price $1 for two bottles—Ointment and Electuary—or 50 cents when sent by mail only.
